Andre Chenier, the Frnech poet, is reported to have said on his way to the guillotine, that there are "crimess so great that they make the laws themselves tremble."